KOROŠKA.
Takes you by surprise.

Koroška comprises three valleys - the Mežiška dolina, the Dravska dolina and the Mislinjska dolina valleys, and three mountain ranges - the Pohorje, the Karavanke and the Savinjske Alpe, that mark the landscape with an independent originality and solidity. A little above a thousand square kilometers and some more than 70 000 inhabitants put this region amongst the smallest in Slovenia.

It is also one of the oldest Slovenian industrial regions. The previous centuries gave start to mining in the area (the beginnings of mining allegedly go back to the Roman era); afterwards ironworks and wood industry have flourished here. Today we are trying to present the work of miners, crofters, charcoal-burners, raftsmen, carpenters and blacksmiths most authentically and vivaciously as an important part of our heritage.

The wholeness of the mountain nature and the woods with an extensive net of mountain roads is offering a wide choice of discovering strolls to the peaks of Peca and Raduha and in the wide vastness of the Pohorje, Uršlja gora, Olševa, Smrekovec and the Kozjak range; as well as to the slopes of picturesque alpine valleys. You will find the stops in these routes equally beautiful and exciting as the natives, the proud heirs of "the self-sown"; welcome you with their rough, but kind-hearted hospitality.

The charm of Koroška is therefore held not by the glorious monuments but the small treasures, molded in nature or by man, or by them both. There are many treasures, scattered over the hidden nooks of villages and nearby mountain valleys under mighty peaks. Koroška, in words of its regular explorers and adrenalin-enjoyers, is "an originality of small treasures and nooks in wilderness in the middle of civilization - as if it were at the end of the world when it actually is at the cross-road of Europe".

You are invited to find out more about this original and colorful world!

Mountains

Regional park of Topla

Koroška is amongst the most mountainous Slovenian regions. 90 percent of the land is covered by gradients, mostly pre-Alpine hills. The greatest and most frequently visited mountain peaks here are Peca, Raduha and Uršlja gora, while Olševa is less visited and so even more attractive.

The mountains of Koroška are significant for the whiteness of their sun-lit rocks and the softness of the hill-sides. The peaks are therefore offering relaxing views of the quiet valleys, the dark green of the vast woods and the fleeting sparks of water drops. This mountain area also attracts inquisitive mountaineers with a special charm of wilderness, offering to disclose around 400 million years' old tracks of the Thetis Ocean bumping into the rocks of Mt. Peca.

Attractive blossoms of rare and endangered alpine plants fascinate those who go to mountains to invigorate their body as well as their soul.

There is one more gem hidden in our mountains. Where the Karavanke range in the east rise up to the sky, a valley of unique beauty and charm extends under the mighty walls of Mt. Peca – the Regional park of Topla. A lover of nature's foot stops and his heart jumps when his eye is trying to catch, at least for a moment, the uniqueness of soft beards of mountain grassland and the freedom of morning views.

Forests

The nature presented Slovenia with woods more generously than most European countries. In this view Koroška is one of the chosen lands and as such a precious pearl in the mosaic of Slovenia. Nowadays, when people run from the urban centers as ecological-tourist emigrants, looking for health and peace of the soul in places with a lot of woods, this fact has a special importance.

The woods of Koroška are special for a significant outline of the dark green of spruce, in heights thinned by larch-trees. These are the perfect home of a most remarkable, but highly endangered inhabitant of the wood – the heath-cock. There is no other place you can listen to its significant woos as much as here.

The vastness of the west Pohorje also belongs to Koroška. The woods there are dark and deep, at places almost impassable primeval forests, mostly overgrown by conifers. A majestic Sgermova smreka spruce which grows on Ribniško Pohorje, with its over 62 m, is the highest tree in Central Europe.

People of Koroška think of the tree as an ancient symbol of life. The old farmhouses in Koroška are therefore surrounded by magnificent lime-trees, growing there for hundreds of years as a pride of the farmers and a prominent ornament of the land. The most special amongst them is "the mother of all Slovenian lime-trees", over 770 years old Najevska lipa lime-tree. Due to its vast circumference and the interesting story about its origins – it is said to have marked buried Turkish treasure – it became a place for an annual national get-together.

Unseparable on slopes of Koroška, woods and brooks indicate the true culture of a country, as the ecologists say. These examples of genuine symbiosis, pampering our lungs, eyes and soul, are numerous here: Sedelnikov slap and Božičev slap waterfalls, Votla peč, Črno jezerce lake at the top of the Krnes hill, Ribniško jezero and Lovrenška jezera lakes ...

Interesting waterfalls, skipping and purling cascades, refreshingly cool wells, pools like from a fairyland, mysterious springs, hidden gorges and straits and silent little lakes are some of the countless water forms. From the nearby mountain peaks and hills all of them flow towards and join in the lazy, dreamy Drava river. Fishing, rowing, rafting and meditating on the banks are some of the relaxing activities for your body and soul. You can discover the beauty of the Drava Valley by walking along the educational water paths. Take a refreshing dip in the first natural swimming pool in Slovenia – the Radlje ob Dravi Water Park. On a guided tour you can find out more about its natural purification system, energy efficiency and minimal impact on its green surroundings.

The most famous of the springs with pure, alkaline and non-sulfuric water is the Rimski vrelec spring near Kotlje and Ivarčko jezero Lake.

Knowing all these things nobody will marvel over ancient local stories about magical springs of “live” water healing every disease, bringing back the youth and turning away death.

Solitary farms

Koroška is a unique, autochthonous world of solitary farms dispersed across the sunny highland. The land between Olševa, the Dravsko polje field and the Austrian border is the largest area of solitary farms in Slovenia. Shingle covered farmhouses together with other farm buildings are crowded on steep slopes, appearing like small settlements. People here call them "celk".

Many generations had to put a lot of hard work, inventiveness and folk-architectural creativity into them because of remoteness and meanness of the land. Therefore many archaic signatures of folk architecture from the 17th century have been kept until today. Such are, before all, wooden granaries – functionally designed buildings with exceptional artistic decorations – usually independent buildings used for keeping cereals, flour and meat. There are also "black kitchens", mills, saw-mills and often even small forges. And, not last, pushed to the edge of the property there are small cottages for the subsistent, the aged farmers and the decrepit farmhands.

Ancient farm work customs like steljaraja, jajčarija, gnojvoža, elsewhere long forgotten, are still kept on these farms. People on these farms can still tell many tales about goblins, giants and other local fairies like prekmandelc, ajdi, škopnek, gozdni mož, žal žene and divja jaga. Their ancestors knew how to bring home spirituality and joy of the aesthetic. Living by and of the woods their carved or painted front doors, cupboards, sideboards and chests are still a proof of their skill.

These farmhouses are also famous for their excellent home cuisine, their first-class, sweet and sharp, cider, and the matchless views of the country below.

Antique hamlets, originally emerging from the high hill-sides which sheltered the first settlements, spreaded towards the valleys and are still a part of the cultured country. The densely overbuilt settlements in the valleys have, through centuries, taken the role of local administration centers, while the town of Slovenj Gradec, especially since 13th century, has developed into a greater, regional administration centre. The town-planning, keeping the historical core inside the frames of a medieval town wall, has successfully kept the integrity of the town's image.

The secondary settling of the hills is more recent; small "islands" of solitary farms in the middle of woods are significant. These remote and almost inaccessible farms have kept their archaic originality until today, as the "fashionable" influences – that have been re-forming hamlets in the valley – could not reach them.

Ivy-overgrown and demolished walls of the most ancient and later abandoned castles in Koroška awaken imagination. Images of mighty aristocrats, the counts Andeški and Vuzeniški, as well as the bishops of Bamberg and their Guštanj ministry, who, foremost in the 13th century, made the local history, raise in our minds. The earliest remnants, from the 11th century, can be found on castle hill above Stari trg pri Slovenj Gradcu and near Irštajn on Paški Kozjak, more recent are those above Dravograd, Vuzenica and Radlje, the most picturesque and still magnificent are the ruins of Vodriž Castle in the middle of the woods below Uršlja gora. Barely healed wounds of the 15th century's violent wars for succession and the 16th century's religious discords enabled generous renaissance and baroque architecture to prosper and leave their mark on numerous country castles and mansions. The most important and the most beautiful among them is Ravne Castle, made even more attractive by a large English park, planted by the counts Thurn at the end of the 19th century. Among many castles that had once been a decoration to the colored Mislinjska and Dravska dolina valleys only town manor Rotenturn in Slovenj Gradec and Bukovje manor near Dravograd have avoided the consequences of time and the flames of World War II.

Sacral monuments

Picturesque and heterogeneous architecture of succursal churches, put up on practically every exposed height, can be seen either from the valley or of a mountain range. This diversity mirrors many autochthonous features, characteristic for the country of Koroška, placing it among the most culturally attractive parts of Slovenia. The earliest sacral monuments preserved in this area date from times of Christianization of Slovenes. Foundations of an Old Christian chapel and tombs inside the church of St. George (sv. Jurij) at Legen from the first half of the 9th century are the only material proof of early Christian communities in the territory of the one-time great Carantania. Most churches have a 12th- or 13th-century core, and Romanesque belfries with choir lofts are a local particularity. The architecture of the church of St. Vitus (sv. Vid) in Dravograd, the earliest documented example (from 1177) of this type of architecture in Slovenia, is extremely loquacious. Rotundas used to stand inward the churchyards; the former were usually simple, but sometimes storeyed ossuaries with a circular ground plan, such as is the ossuary in Libeliče near Dravograd from the first half of the 13th century, and the even more remarkable and ambitiously designed round church of St. John the Baptist (sv. Janeza Krstnika) in Spodnja Muta. The church of St. Pancras (sv. Pankracij) in Grad above Stari trg near Slovenj Gradec from around 1240 is an exceptional and distinguished monument. There are few churches of the Gothic architectural style from the 15th and the 16th century that are preserved in their original medieval form such as the prominent twin churches of St. Volbenk (sv. Volbenk) and St. Anne (sv. Ana) in Leše above Prevalje, and the hospital church of the Holy Spirit (sv. Duh) in Slovenj Gradec. The rest of the churches' medieval architectural partition is concealed by baroque reconstructions; only as local particularities there are some Gothic presbyteries with low outer pillars still preserved.

The taste of the old-fashioned conservatism conveying respect of the traditional values has also been responsible for the outward form of the church with the greatest height above sea level in Slovenia. In 1602 the neighboring farmers, with a generous donation of the bishop of Ljubljana, Tomaž Hren, finished the church of St. Ursula (sv. Uršula) on Mt. Uršlja gora. Since then it has been the mother of all churches of Koroška, dominating on the 1696 meters high solitary Karavanke mountain.

Traditional creativity

Strategic position of the drafty borderland between Carinthia and Styria has always been dictating a vivacious cultural and artistic circulation. Echoes of the great northern and south-western centers' artistic achievements were here additionally refined by a rich local tradition, turning up with quite original results. Simple folk-painters and carvers have decorated not only the succursal country churches' altars, but also numerous marks and small chapels on the paths between solitary Koroška farms; and they still use the typical old samples and patterns. Once every apiary in Koroška used to have decorated front parts of beehives; today these decorations represent a treasure-house of folk-motives – they keep a rich collection of decorated front parts of beehives at Koroška Regional Museum.

The skills of wood carvers and other traditional home manufacturers, particularly wicker workers, blacksmith arts men and sellers of honey and sweetmeats made with honey, have not only survived the centuries, but have, through various kinds of entertainment and shows, especially with Slovene biennial exhibition of cottage industry and practical art in Slovenj Gradec, been raised to a mastery.

A more ambitious fine-arts heritage can be found in parish churches of the valley market-towns and towns. The medieval town of Slovenj Gradec prospered with well-known carving workshops in the baroque 17th and especially in the 18th centuries, when important artistic and applied-art workshops of the Scobl, Strauss and Mersi families operated here.

Artistic expressions

The rich tradition dictated the modern cultural development. Already before World War II the Slovenj Gradec vicar Jakob Soklič opened the first public museum in Koroška and after the war sponsored the raising of Koroška Art Gallery. While its international collection comprises works of many foreign masters of modern art, a special attention is paid to local artists: the pioneer of modern Slovene statuary, Fran Berneker, and highly valued modern artists such as Bogdan Borčič, Karel Pečko, Andrej Grošelj, Anton Repnik, Naca Rojnik, Sašo Vrabič and the authentically original Jože Tisnikar.

Internationally renowned sculptors' symposium Forma Viva used to represent the centre of artistic life in Ravne. In decades after World War II, under patronage of the Ravne ironworks, it contributed a collection of thirty monumental steel statuarys that mean an enlivenment of the urban environment of the Mežiška dolina valley. Many important local and foreign artists' sculptures can also be found at selected Slovenj Gradec outdoor ambiances.

A sensitive spiritual heritage and an invaluable historical memory have also interweaved the work of Koroška literary and musical giants. Prežihova bajta cottage above Kotlje invites us to the world of Lovro Kuhar, the writer. Sele under Uršlja gora are an idyllically remote village, once home to Franc Ksaver Meško, the writer. Loquacious is the middle-class atmosphere of the house in Slovenj Gradec in which Hugo Wolf, the famous solo composer, was born. Their followers, Dr. Franc Sušnik, Leopold Suhodolčan, Janez Mrdavšič, writers, and Lojze Lebič, the composer, have brought the recognizable idiom of Koroška to present time; though the charm of the times gone by and the still present relics of the past are most authentically, and immediately, echoed in the lyrical and melancholic folk songs, in the words of the original self-taught authors ("bukovniki"), such as was Blaž Mavrel from Strojna, and the alluring dialect of the carvings made by folk-carvers, such as was Gregor Lipovnik from Dobrije.

Technical heritage

Technical heritage is a part of industrial heritage that keeps the memory of historical tools, machines and other devices used for extraction of lead in the mountain chain of Peca, from the 17th to the 20th century, and for extraction of brown coal in Leše, from 1818 to 1935. It also reminds us of forging of nails, wiredrawing, production of iron and steel, scythes, plough tails, ploughshares, axes, hoes and other tools, used by inhabitants of Črna, Mežica, Ravne na Koroškem, Muta and Mislinja in the 17th and the 18th centuries. The preserved work units and machines bear witness of technical and technological achievements of the ironworks and steelworks in the 19th and the 20th centuries in Koroška, of use of brown coal at gaining steel, of the Rosthorns ironworks' production of rails for railways in surroundings of Vienna and northern Italy, of the Thurns steelworks' high-quality steel, which is still world-wide known, of raft transport along the Drava river, of railway conveyance to Maribor (built in 1863) and to Velenje (built in 1899). Abandoned buildings, together with other preserved material evidence, tell about the left off work units, such as blast-furnace in Sv. Primož (1782–1833), glassworks and glass furnace in Hudi Kot and Josipdol (1799–1908), and trade sawmills, impelled by water power, that have been a part of the timber industry since World War II.

Koroška Regional Museum with its divisions in Ravne, Dravograd, Radlje ob Dravi and Slovenj Gradec provides public services with all the fundamental museum departments for keeping and preserving the mobile cultural heritage of the region, with many collections scattered across all the communities of Koroška.

There is also a long tradition of public libraries in Koroška. National reading clubs were set up here already in the 1870's. Today the Koroška Central Library Dr. Franc Sušnik, situated in restored premises of Ravne castle, can pride itself upon an accomplished local collection and over 250.000 units of material.

Peca Underground

Through centuries, miners under the mountain Peca dug a labyrinth of up to 1.000 km of tunnels, a small part of which has been opened for tourists nowadays.

A tour of the mine and mining work areas for the visitors takes them through the 3,5 km long Glančnik tunnel, on board of an original mining train, all the way to the heart of the mountain. From there, the tour is continued on foot, discovering the secrets of the miners' work in various eras along with their guide. A special experience is offered by riding mountain bikes through the mines, or kayak through flooded tunnels and excavated areas. The basic offer is livened up with numerous cultural events, taking place in a specially prepared area underground.

In front of the entrance of the Glančnik mine, the museum offers many collections, out of which a rich collection of minerals and a miner's apartment are the most notable.

The Podzemlje Pece museum is also a centre point and information centre of the crossborder Karavanke UNESCO Global Geopark.

Timber-rafting on the Drava

The first written documents that mention rafting work on the Drava are from 1280. Rafting work was the most important economic branch in the 19th and the 20th centuries in the Dravska dolina valley. Then raftsmen (flosarji) conveyed wood along the river all the way to Hungary, Serbia and Rumania. Their work was tiresome and dangerous because of their bold fighting against the whirls, but it was well-paid.

The bygone water adventures are today made safe for you to experience them on real rafts, made especially for tourist rafting on the Drava. The rafting includes a rich entertainment and music programme.

In an authentically preserved rafting house in the little village of Javnik there is a unique museum, presenting the typical life of the former raftsmen.

Hiking

The forests of Koroška are crisscrossed by cart tracks and forest paths and their ridges are accessible via trails that generally lead to the points from which to enjoy the best views. There are numerous mountain huts along the marked mountain trails, offering hikers warm shelter and a place to spend the night, fortifying food and drink and friendly advice. The Koroška region is traversed by European long-distance path E6 and the Slovenian Mountain Trail. Hillwalkers enjoy the challenge of the Koroška Alpine Trail, hikes across the expanses of the Pohorje massif, to the peaks of Kozjak, Uršlja Gora or Smrekovec, or the more demanding mountain ascents of Peca, Olševa or Raduha. The areas surrounding the region's larger towns offer numerous interesting themed routes suitable for relaxing walks, recreation or exploring. You will not find great crowds of hikers here, except on special occasions, and therefore your experience of unspoilt nature will be all the more genuine. Koroška is the perfect choice both for occasional hikers and for those who enjoy the challenge of steep slopes.

K24 ensures a real mountaineering or trail running experience. The route runs along the five highest peaks in Koroška. The most enduring mountaineers, who complete the route in less than 24 hours, become members of the prestigious K24 Club. The K24 Ultra Trail is an even more extreme version and trail running race.

Adventures

Koroška is probably the only place in the world where in just one day it is possible to touch the sky and head down towards the centre of Earth. In Koroška you can even go underground by kayak into the bowels of Mt. Peca. This unforgettable kayak adventure in the underworld of Peca is one of the first of Slovenia's 5-star experiences that have been awarded the label 'Slovenia Unique Experiences' by the Slovenian Tourist Board.

Huda luknja (literally: evil hole) is one of the oldest tourist-accessible Karst caves in Slovenia. It has been open to visitors since 1985. Today, visitors can experience the underground Karst world on a unique trek through the cave system accompanied by an experienced cave guide.

The Libeliče airfield has a grass runway for flights by ultra-light aircraft, parachutist landings and model aircraft and is the starting point for panoramic flights over Koroška.

Another special experience is a 'flight' above Črna na Koroškem on the Olimpline – the longest continuous zipline in Slovenia. Adrenaline seekers will also enjoy the challenge of the demanding Mučevo via ferrata. The range of facilities in the Outdoor Park in Črna na Koroškem is complemented by an adventure/climbing park for children.

In the embrace of the Pohorje forests, a whole range of adventures and outdoor activities are available on Kope, among which the most daring choose an adventure on high ropes. For those who would rather take it easy, relax both mentally and physically and 'fill their batteries', a visit to the energy points at the top of Pungart is recommended.

The Radlje ob Dravi Water Park is the perfect choice for all those seeking summer refreshment in the midst of pristine nature, as well as those who dream about carefree swimming among water lilies. Adrenaline enthusiasts are also catered for, as there are outdoor sports facilities in close proximity to the natural swimming pool.

The Kope ski resort

The Kope ski resort

The Kope ski resort

The Koroška region radiates its beauty in all seasons, but some people think that it is the most charming in the winter, when it's covered in deep snow. Pearly white snowflakes with rainbow reflections of winter sunbeams are everywhere, and the brooks covered in sparkling ice.

Ski runs on the slopes of Mt. Pohorje and Mt. Peca as well as in the valleys offer plenty of opportunities for experienced skiers, and especially for beginners and families with children. The biggest ski resort in Koroška is Kope, combined with Ribniško Pohorje, with many ski slopes, modernized ski lifts and accommodations situated on the west and the highest part of the Pohorje. Črna na Koroškem is another ski resort, which almost reaches the centre of the village and is well-known for its top skiers. In Ravne na Koroškem you can also enjoy many indoor sport activities right next to the ski slopes. The most popular ski school for children is in Kotlje, under Mt. Uršlja gora, while exciting recreational competitions take place in Bukovnik...

Cross-country skiing is possible on the plains of the Pohorje mountains between Kope and Ribniška koča, in Črna na Koroškem and in the neighboring Bistra valley, at the Sports park in Ravne na Koroškem, in Kotlje and on a section of a cycling trails along the Mislinja valley between Dovže and Mislinja.

In good weather/snow conditions you can ski off-piste down the slopes of Mt. Peca, Mt. Raduha and Mt. Olševa. Mt. Peca (Mt. Petzen) is the most interesting for off-piste skiers, especially for those who prefer descending to climbing, as there is a cableway on the Austrian side leading all the way up to 1,950m just below the top of the mountain.

The Mislinja ski-jumping centre can boast with several ski jumps. The advantageous position of ski jumps ensures a long winter season. All the ski jumps are covered in plastic, therefore ski jumping here is possible in all seasons.

Almost the entire region is suitable for short walks as well as for all-day winter hikes in natural surroundings.

In Črna na Koroškem every last Weekend in January the unique traditional tourist event take place – a contest in building »snow castles for King Matjaž«, with many accompanying events.

Natural characteristics of Koroška, with its freshness and green of the woods and many well-maintained hiking paths, represent an exceptional basis for basic fitness preparations for athletes. All around the region, there are perfectly maintained sports facilities, connected into modern sports and recreation centers in larger towns, where training and recreational activities in various sports are possible in one place.

The providers of sports programmes and managers of the facilities have multiple years of rich experience with groups of athletes, while the happiness of the later is demonstrated by the fact that they're glad to return.

Nature, available sports facilities and competent providers of programmes form a winning combination for the organization of top of the line sports preparations and training camps in Koroška. And good preparations ensure top results.

Natural, homely and traditional are words that can be used to describe the food at Koroška tourist farms

Holidays on farm

At a family-friendly tourist farm

There are many examples of traditional farm architecture well preserved in Koroška – from mighty farms (celki) with granaries, mills and sawmills to shacks with “black kitchens”, with their original inner and outer form introducing us to the farm-work milieu and life that the works of Prežihov Voranc very clearly describe.

The local people saved many folk dances, songs and customs in the dialect of Koroška from oblivion. Here they still cultivate some folkloristic peculiarities, such as šitlni (shingles), steljaraja, jajčarija, pojštertanc, mošt (cider) ...

You can experience this authentic environment with its well-kept farms in the famous tourist village of Šentanel and its surrounding settlements. There are also several other tourist farms on the slopes of the Pohorje and Uršlja gora welcoming you warmly.

Natural, home-made and traditional are the words to describe the culinary art of Koroška. We are above all proud of our specific autochthonous food customs and dishes. They have their source in natural production and in the original traditional recipes. Therefore Koroška cuisine keeps many dishes that have been long forgotten elsewhere. The preparation of these dishes namely demands a lot of expertise, care and time. The housewives and landlords (birti) here still know how to cook kločevi nudlni (special kind of dried pears dumplings), ožejeni žganki (hard-boiled corn mush), mavželjni and mežerli (special dishes of Koroška) and cracklings that prompt the culinary experience already with their uncommon names.

A specialty of Koroška is its famous black rye bread. It is made by an old unwritten recipe and baked in baker's oven it still tastes the same even after a few days.

Koroška is also famous for its delicious mošt (cider), a traditional drink, made with fermentation of juice from old apple sorts. Its primary distinction is the use of ecological (non-sprinkled) fruit and the natural process of fermentation. As a real warm welcome the landlord will offer you a home-made brandy – it will often be the most appreciated and valued bilberry brandy (črničov šnops), a litre of which demands as much as 22 kilograms of bilberries ...

ČRNA NA KOROŠKEM

Črna na Koroškem is a picturesque municipality. Its natural gems are the wonderful Topla, Koprivna, Bistra and Javorje alpine valleys and the Najevska lipa lime tree – the oldest lime tree in Slovenia – in Ludranski Vrh. The centre of Črna na Koroškem is characterised by its old centre with a crossroads, where there are monuments, designed by the architect Jože Plečnik, in memory of the victims of both world wars, an ethnological collection, an exhibition on Olympians from the settlement, and an open-air mining collection. The settlement is known for its popular, traditional tourist and sports events – Castles of King Matjaž, Koroška Tourist Week, King Matjaž Marathon, and the K24 Ultra Trail race. Just a stone's throw from the centre of the settlement there is a small, well-groomed ski piste – the cradle of the cream of skiers who are most responsible for Črna being known as the Village of Olympians. Adrenaline seekers can make a descent on the Olimpline – the longest zipline in Slovenia, and test their skills on the Mučevo via ferrata.

DRAVOGRAD

Dravograd lies at the meeting point of three valleys – the Mežiška dolina, the Mislinjska dolina and the upper Dravska dolina valleys. From the old market centre beneath the former castle and tollhouse, a quay was later formed for Drava rafters, and even later a large railway junction, which then grew into a modern settlement that divides the left and right banks of the Drava river. The municipality is full of traces of history. Among the most prevalent are the raftsmen who today transport tourists along the Drava, as well as the prominent Romanesque church of St. Vitus, the noteworthy ossuary in Libeliče, the museum collection on Nazi violence in Dravograd, and Bukovje Manor featuring an exhibition about the 1991 Battle of the Barracks in Koroška. The most interesting natural science parts of the Dravograd landscape are the areas of Košenjak-Velka and Lake Dravograd.

MEŽICA

The idyllic small town of Mežica is the namesake alpine and mining tourist centre of the Mežiška dolina valley. As far back as Roman times mining took place beneath Mt. Peca, while today it is home to an underground tourist mine and museum. Well-maintained forest roads and hiking trail lead to all the surrounding hills, including to the Dom na Peci mountain hut, where King Matjaž sleeps in a nearby cave. Above Mežica is St. Lenart's church with its miraculous chain, Podkraj with its typical granaries, and Lom with its wonderful views of neighbouring Podjuna. Visitors can see an apiculture collection and numerous interpretation points that are connected by the Geological Learning Trail. The main tourist attraction of Mežica is the Peca Underground – a tourist mine and museum which is also home to the Karavanke UNESCO Global Geopark information centre.

MISLINJA

On the outside visitors to Mislinja may be under the impression that it is just a settlement with a church and a few houses on either side of the main road, when it is actually an amalgamation of five old, former hamlets. The development of the settlement is linked to its position along the ancient Celeia-Colatio-Virunum road, hence it was easier to develop trade, transportation and ironworking. The first foundry in the settlement began to operate in 1724. Worthy of a look today are the churches of St. Lenart and St. Ahac, the Robnik blacksmiths' workshop, and the Dovže archeological site known as 'Villa Rustika'. There are even more opportunities for various excursions in the area, such as a pleasant trip to Kope, which is the central tourist/recreational centre of Koroška, as well to Rogla, Turjak, Stara Glažuta, among others. Locals are proud that the artist Jože Tisnikar was born in the settlement.

MUTA

Muta is situated in a natural cradle between Pohorje, Drava and Kobansko. In the past the settlement was characterised by iron forging. This centuries-old trade is faithfully preserved at the Muta Forge and Firefighters' Museum. There are numerous cultural monuments, among them the Kienhofen Mansion, which is home to the aforementioned museum, and the Rotunda of St. John the Baptist. In Gortina there is a timber-rafters' quay, where raftsmen transport tourists on journeys along the Drava river. Cyclists on the Drava River Cycling Route like to stop and fortify themselves at the Mitnica bar in Spodnja Muta, where there is also a sport/recreation park. The neighbouring settlements of Pernica, Sveti Primož and Sveti Jernej nad Muto are ideal places for peaceful and scenic walks amid idyllic nature through the year.

PODVELKA

Podvelka is an interesting settlement on the left bank of the Drava river. In the past it was merely a place of residence for forestry workers who prepared wood transported by river for sale. Today, the steep uninhabited slopes are a paradise for those seeking peace, the freshness of nature and clean forest air. Janževski Vrh, Javnik and Lehen na Pohorju are equally beautiful. The most popular tourist activities are a journey on a timber raft along the Drava in the tourist village of Javnik, and St. John's (sv. Janez) church on Janževski Vrh, the special feature of which is its incredibly strong positive energy, which is said to be healing. Take a walk along the Razledna pot (Path of Views) in the parish of Kapla na Kozjaku, which has 19 points, and/or the shorter and easier Srčna pot (Heart Path).

www.podvelka.si

PREVALJE

The history of Prevalje is that of iron forging, since right up until it ceased to operate, the ironworks was the strongest in this part of Europe. The municipality boasts a wealth of cultural history: Roman stones found in Zagrad, two beautiful gothic churches above Leše, the Štopar bridge, exceptional technical monuments, the former headquarters of the Hermagoras Society – Slovenia's oldest publishing house – and with the idea for Reading Badge which was born here. Be sure not to miss a visit to the tourist village of Šentanel and also Poljana, where the final battles took place of World War II in Europe, as well as the Holmec border crossing, where in 1991 one of the most important battles took place in the Slovenian War of Independence. The Jamnica Single Park Trail is a paradise for mountain bikers from throughout the world.

RADLJE OB DRAVI

Radlje ob Dravi was first mentioned in the year 1139 as villa Radela, and later as a market town in 1268. Finds from Roman times attest to the venerable age of the settlement. The town found its way onto Slovenia's tourist map thanks to the Radlje ob Dravi Water Park – the first natural pool in Slovenia – and the Slovenia Green Silver label for its green aspirations. Numerous cultural attractions, innovative sports infrastructure and, above all, the pristine nature on the slopes of Pohorje and Kozjak offer visitors a wide range of activities, which include exploring nature on various educational trails (forest, beekeeping and two water trails) and theme trails (Path Along the Borders of the Municipality and the Green Adventures of Lord Marenberg), cycling alongside the Drava river, hiking on panoramic trails or discovering culture through museum exhibitions or mysterious churches.

www.radlje.si

RAVNE NA KOROŠKEM

Ravne na Koroškem is the biggest town in Koroška – a place of ironworkers, Forma viva iron sculptures and literary wealth. The rich funds of the central Koroška library attest to the cultural growth, while museum collections exhibit the history of ironworking. The birthhouse of Prežihov Voranc in Preški Vrh above Kotlje is a memorial museum to the author Lovro Kuhar. The Ivarčko lake beneath Mt. Uršlja gora has once again been revived as a tourist attraction. The town has a modern sports centre with halls, Olympic and winter pools, an athletics stadium, a ski piste, a mountain bike park, sauna, fitness centre, adventure park, numerous playgrounds and various accommodation facilities including glamping. The preserved technical heritage in the area of the old ironworks is a starting point for cultural tourism in the municipality.

RIBNICA NA POHORJU

Ribnica na Pohorju is a small, clustered settlement on the southern slopes of Pohorje. In Roman times, a road from Slovenske Konjice ran through Ribnica to the Drava valley. Since the village is surrounded by the vast, dark forests of Pohorje, it has long been a place of forestry and saw milling as well as cattle breeding, while in the past it was marked by glassmaking and stonecutting. Today, Ribnica is an idyllic, climatic tourist village with a neighbourhood of apartments, a ski piste and tourist farms. It is also a great starting place for mountain biking and hiking towards the Ribniška koča mountain hut and Jezerski vrh. The Museum of Stonecutting, Glassmaking and Forestry is located in Josipdol as well as one of the first forest educational trails – Kapelvald – which is a real treasure trove of a wide variety of species of trees. Along the trail you can learn about natural beauty, the importance of the forest and about life and history in this part of Pohorje.

SLOVENJ GRADEC

Slovenj Gradec is the administrative, economic and cultural centre of the Mislinja valley. It was granted town rights in 1267, making it the oldest town in Koroška. Its favourable location provided a shelter between Uršlja gora and neighbouring Pohorje, where today there are a range of hiking and cycling routes, among them the Štekna cycling route which leads along an abandoned railway line. Kope, the central tourist/recreational outdoor centre of Koroška, is nearby. The town is known for its artists and numerous cultural and social events. Among the main cultural attractions are the Museum of Modern and Contemporary Art Koroška, the Koroška Regional Museum, and the birth house of Hugo Wolf. Thanks to its lively cultural activities, in 1989 the United Nations awarded Slovenj Gradec the prestigious title of 'Peace Messenger City'. In addition to numerous 'Best-kept' awards, the town has also received the label 'Slovenia Green Destination'.

VUZENICA

Vuzenica, the seat of the municipality and the centre of the settlement, is ideally located along the right bank of the Drava river. It is distinguished by its reputation for being among the oldest towns in the Drava valley. In the past, timber-raftsmen floated their rafts here, while transporters cheerfully loaded the timber onto the embankment beside the Drava. There were also various lively markets and fairs. Today, remains of the old castle and the St. Nicholas's (sv. Nikolaj) parish church attest to its former glory. The poet and national awakener Anton Martin Slomšek was formerly the church's senior parish priest. Neighbouring Dravče, Sv. Primož na Pohorju, Sv. Vid and Šentjanž nad Dravčami are the ideal place for wonderful autumn strolls.
