Lee Eun Hye / Lee Sin Hye Lee Eun-Hye is an elementary school teacher for many years. She wanted to be an artist but she thought she was not creative enough. She fell in love with picture books later and joined Lee Rury Picture Book Work Shop. She wrote and illustrated her first picture book 『Thumbs Up』 with her sister Sin-hye. Sin-hye also loved doodling and drawing characters ever since she was young. After graduating as an athletic major, she worked as an accountant and lived a normal and boring life, far from being an author. She fell in love with the picture books Eun-hye introduced to her, and this is their second picture book. They work on many more books together.

The King Has Rabbit Ears

Lee Eun Hye and Lee Sin Hye
Hardcover | 200 × 287mm | 56p | Age 5+

The king has rabbit ears, not donkey ears?

Feeling far too hot, the pig king pours a bucket of water on his head. But the well he took the water from had the following sign: “Caution! It’s going to get longer.” What will happen to the pig king with rabbit ears? “The King Has Rabbit Ears” is a fun-packed picture book that is a parody of “The King Has Donkey Ears.” The story of Gyeongmun, ruler of the ancient Korean kingdom of Silla, is transformed in this retelling from a 21st Century standpoint.

Please Pick up My Ball 84

Chayada

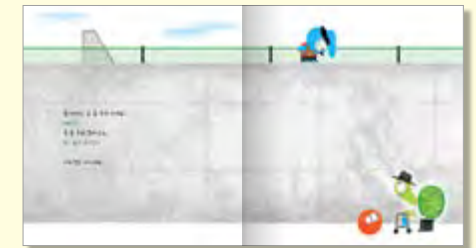

Hardcover | 241 × 268mm | 48p | Age 3+

A cheerful and delightful picture book about differences and practice

'Please Pick up My Ball' is the story of a young rabbit who has a new ball. When he kicks the ball too hard, it goes over the fence and all the way down the road. But the young rabbit can't be bothered to go all the way down and pick up the ball. So he asks passing animals to pick it up instead. Who will give the ball back to the rabbit? To bring speed to the fore, Chayada shows us the extremes. The hare (here, a rabbit) is a young boy, while the tortoise is an old man. Further still, the tortoise relies on a walker to get around. He can hardly hear anything, either. So to begin with, the two are not rivals. That is the wonderful twist of this story.

SoftCover | 168*220mm | 92p | Age 7+

Join Jenna, the Fart Princess, on a wild and wacky adventure

Yena the Fart Princess has a big adventure! Yena is known as the Fart Princess because of her uncontrollable farting. One day, a purple dwarf with a round, elongated body and thin limbs comes to her. He tells her that if she goes to the Kumaguma Kingdom, she can sell the terrible farts that have been troubling her. Will Yena be able to sell her farts and escape the stigma of being the Fart Princess? In a magical world where farts are transformed into energy, Jenna discovers her own specialness. If you've ever had a quirk that you hated because it was too ordinary or different from others, take a second look. Because maybe it's a special treasure that only you have. A short, intense story that you won't be able to put down once you open it. Highly recommended for children starting to read on their own!

Graphic Novel

Smart Man

Seo Young Park

Hardcover | 216 × 168mm | 120p | Age 6+

There was once a little boy living a modern, 'smart' daily life. One day, as usual, he put his smartphone in his pocket and went for a walk. All of a sudden his smartphone slipped out of his pocket and fell onto the ground. In that moment, he became confused. "If my phone is broken, what should I do?" With trembling hands he picked up the smartphone, but his phone didn't even have a scratch on it. The little boy gave a sigh of relief and started on his way again when he had to go to the bathroom. He finished using the bathroom, and as soon as he looked in the mirror, something unbelievable happened. Smart Man is a graphic novel illustrated to show the complicated events of a little boy's daily experiences. The author portrays the psychology of a little boy in a world filled with cracks and fear of everyday life caused by smartphones in a comical and thrilling way.

Seo Young Park The author was born 1989 and was raised in Seoul. When she was young she moved with her parents to Ireland but since she couldn't communicate with friends, she got really into cartoons on TV and books with pictures in them. The joy and feeling of being so immersed during that time is still firmly planted in her memory. In university she studied Korean Literature and after graduating worked odd jobs in film production, public institutions, and distribution companies. After feeling lost for a while, she decided she wanted to work for herself and not others, and began the challenge of making a picture book.
