

The background of the entire image is a repeating pattern of stylized, rounded square shapes in two shades of blue. The pattern is composed of light blue squares with darker blue rounded corners, and darker blue squares with lighter blue rounded corners, creating a tessellated effect. In the center of the image, there are two white rounded rectangular boxes. The top box contains the 'UTP' logo in a dark blue serif font, followed by the text 'UNIVERSITY OF TORONTO PRESS' in a smaller, dark blue sans-serif font. The bottom box contains the text 'JOURNALS' in a dark blue sans-serif font, followed by '2024' in a large, bold, dark blue sans-serif font.

Editors:

Catherine Desbarats and P. E. Bryden

Canadian studies, history, Indigenous studies, politics

In January 1919, the Review of Historical Publications Relating to Canada continued as the Canadian Historical Review (CHR). Offering a comprehensive analysis on the events that have shaped Canada into its current state, the Canadian Historical Review is a benchmark in the exploration of Canadian society and its institutions. Each issue contains a series of insightful articles that examine Canadian history from both a multicultural and multidisciplinary perspective. These articles reflect the best of the diversity within Canadian historical scholarship while, at the same time, speaking to our broad readership. In addition to research articles and the broadest selection of book reviews on Canadian-related historical subjects, the journal also promotes scholarly dialogue and debate through “Forums,” and “Historical Perspectives” features. These deal with methodological and historiographic questions that concern the diffusion of historical knowledge in the Canadian context from respectively either a single or multi-author perspective.

Catherine Desbarats is a historian of New France, the French Atlantic World, and early modern French empire formation. She is Chair of the Department of History and Classical Studies at McGill University (Montreal, QC, Canada).

P. E. Bryden is an historian of modern Canada, who has published widely on the welfare state, federalism and Canadian politics. She is a professor of history at the University of Victoria (Victoria, BC, Canada).

film studies, history, media studies

The Canadian Journal of Film Studies (CJFS) is Canada's leading academic peer-reviewed film journal.

CJFS publishes scholarly articles on film, television, and other audio-visual media. Subjects may be either Canadian or any other national or transnational cinema. We also publish reviews and review-essays of recent books in film and media studies. Other occasional features of CJFS are “Ciné-Documents” (rare and archival materials relevant to the study of moving images), and “Ciné-Forum,” in which we publish short articles on any topic of interest to film and media students and scholars.

Liz Czach is an Associate Professor, Faculty of Arts - English & Film Studies department at the University of Alberta (Edmonton, AB, Canada) and past president of the Film Studies Association of Canada.

André Loiselle is Dean of the Faculty of Humanities and teaches film studies at St. Thomas University (Fredericton, NB, Canada).

Co-Editors:

Angela Cameron, Vanessa Gruben,
and Audrey Ferron-Parayre

gender studies, human rights, law, public policy

The Canadian Journal of Women and the Law (CJWL) is the only Canadian periodical devoted entirely to the publication and dissemination of multi-disciplinary scholarship in the expanding field of women's legal studies. The CJWL's readership includes lawyers, judges, law students, academics, government officials and others interested in women's equality.

The Journal promotes the expansion of women's legal scholarship into new areas of research and study, and it aims to increase the volume and improve the accessibility of legal scholarship by Canadian women, on specifically Canadian topics. Finally, the CJWL seeks to provide an important tool for activists, academics and others engaged in research and law reform efforts on behalf of women.

Angela Cameron, English Language Co-Editor, is an Associate Professor in the Faculty of Law at University of Ottawa (Ottawa, ON, Canada) and a member of the Board of Directors of the Canadian Association of Law Teachers.

Canadian studies, literature, media, theatre

The major magazine of record for Canadian theatre, Canadian Theatre Review (CTR) serves as a platform for discussion for a wide spectrum of the theatre community—performers, directors, designers, professionals, academics, teachers, critics, and theatregoers. CTR introduces new artists, publishes a significant new script in each issue, features unique photos and videos of productions, and provides a forum for the national discussion of new directions in theatre and performance. CTR compiles theme issues that present multifaceted examinations of a range of topics, an approach that supports its ongoing search for writers from historically marginalized communities. Well respected in Canada and internationally, CTR is committed to excellence in the critical analysis and innovative coverage of current developments.

Heather Davis-Fisch is Dean of Fine Arts and a Professor in the Drama department at the University of Lethbridge (Lethbridge, AB, Canada). Her research interest is in Canadian performance history, focusing on historiography, intercultural performance, and decolonial methodologies.

2023 Volume

In a 'Land of Hope': Documents on the Canadian Jewish Experience, 1627-1923

Available in hardcover, paperback, and online

Editors:
Pierre Anctil and Richard Menkis

Canadian studies, cultural studies, history, Jewish Studies

The Champlain Society 2023 volume offers an overview of Canadian Jewish history up to 1923, for the first time from the point of references to its most salient and significant historical sources. This collection includes documentation from diverse archives in many languages, which account for the evolution of Canadian Jewry over three centuries and through a wide array of contexts and circumstances. This volume, the first of two on this subject, includes sources that have never been published before and highlights the activities, concerns, and experiences of individuals that have not been heard until now.

Pierre Anctil is a member of the Royal Society of Canada since 2012 and a professor emeritus at the University of Ottawa (Ottawa, ON, Canada) since 2022. He has written at length on the history of the Jewish community of Montréal and on the current debates on cultural pluralism in Francophone Canada.

Richard Menkis is Associate Professor of History at the University of British Columbia (Vancouver, BC, Canada). His publications include More than Just Games: Canada and the 1936 Olympics, co-authored with Harold Troper. He is the founding editor of Canadian Jewish Studies/Études juives canadiennes; the co-editor, with Norman Ravvin, of the Canadian Jewish Studies Reader; and served as the Divisional co-editor for entries on Canada in the second edition of the Encyclopaedia Judaica.

From the Frozen Sea to Buffalo Country: The Life and Times of Henry Kelsey of the Hudson's Bay Company, 1667-1724

Edited by Arthur J. Ray

2022 Volume

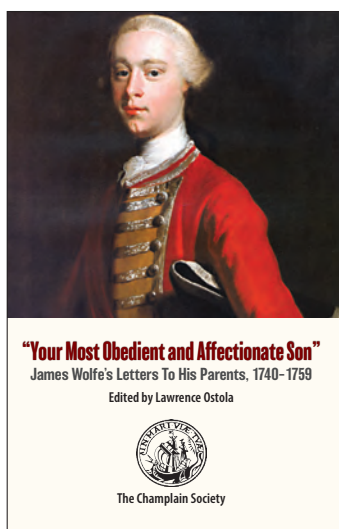

Print and online

ISBN (hardcover edition): 978-1-4875-4576-5

ISBN (paperback edition): 978-1-4875-4674-8

ISBN (electronic edition): 978-1-4875-4675-5

Henry Kelsey is remembered for being the first European to travel from Hudson Bay to the territories of the Plains Assiniboine and Cree as a young Hudson's Bay Company servant in 1690-91. Taking advantage of the opening of the Hudson's Bay Company's Archives in the late 1960s and the voluminous new research in the fields of Indigenous and fur trade history, this publication offers a new look at Kelsey's papers and includes his previously unpublished Swampy Cree-English dictionary. This volume also provides us with some of our earliest glimpses in English of aspects of the lives and cultures of various Indigenous peoples from Hudson Bay-James Bay to the grasslands of the western interior of Canada.

"Your Most Obedient and Affectionate Son": James Wolfe's Letters to His Parents, 1740-1759

Edited by Lawrence Ostola

2021 Volume

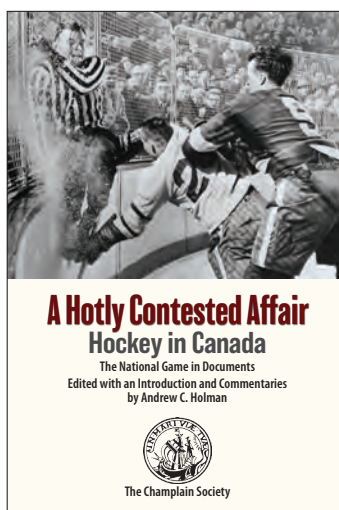

Print and online

ISBN (hardcover edition): 978-1-4875-5494-1

ISBN (paperback edition): 978-1-2875-5494-1

ISBN (electronic edition): 978-1-4875-5496

Writing on a range of subjects in this outstanding collection of over two hundred letters, Wolfe provides us with fascinating and intimate glimpses of eighteenth-century life as he experienced it. From his life and career aspirations in the army, to questions of human nature, health, and marriage, to observations Wolfe made while posted to Scotland and during a sojourn in Paris, his keen insights make for fascinating reading and a deeper understanding of the character and personality of a significant historical figure. This edition of Wolfe's letters will take readers far beyond the well-known drama of his final moments and instead provide an illuminating sense of the road he travelled to Quebec.

A Hotly Contested Affair: Hockey in Canada The National Game in Documents

Edited with an Introduction and Commentaries by Andrew C. Holman

2020 Volume

Print and online

ISBN (hardcover edition): 978-1-4875-0862-3

ISBN (paperback edition): 978-1-4875-2666-5

ISBN (electronic edition): 978-1-4875-3863-7

A Hotly Contested Affair: Hockey in Canada traces the historical arc of Canada's national winter game from its "founding" in Montreal in the mid-1870s into the early twenty-first century. The essential documents presented in this book reveal how deeply embedded—and, in countless ways, hotly contested—hockey was among the peoples of post-Confederation Canada.

Diaspora: A Journal of Transnational Studies is dedicated to the multidisciplinary study of the history, culture, social structure, politics, and economics of both the traditional diasporas and the new transnational dispersions identified as “diasporas.”

The establishment of Diaspora was a seminal moment in marking what has become the field of diaspora studies, setting out and nurturing an expanding project that recognizes its roots in historic Jewish, Armenian, and Greek diasporas, to include and embrace transnational formations and phenomena challenging the established models and concepts for the study of nation-states, societies, and cultures. This substantive transformation of the discourse of diaspora studies has entailed theoretical reflection, and a vigorous and continual rethinking of older definitions on behalf of more capacious conceptualizations of new forms of dispersion, diaspora and transnationalism.

Talar Chahinian holds a Ph.D. in Comparative Literature from UCLA and lectures in the Program for Armenian Studies at University of California, Irvine (Irvine, CA, US) where she is also a Research Associate in the Department of Comparative Literature.

Sossie Kasbarian is Senior Lecturer in Comparative Politics at the University of Stirling (Stirling, Scotland, UK). She was previously Lecturer in Middle East Politics at Lancaster University (Lancashire, England, UK) from 2012 to 2017.

In keeping with the objectives of the International Institute for Genocide and Human Rights Studies, Genocide Studies International (GSI) is dedicated to raising knowledge and awareness among scholars, policy makers, and civil society actors by providing a forum for the critical analysis of genocide, human rights, crimes against humanity, and related mass atrocities. GSI publishes interdisciplinary and comparative work on the history, causes, impact, and aftermath of genocide and related crimes, as well as those which contextualize genocide in relation to conflict, exploitation, colonialism, racism, bigotry, sexism, oppression, and globalization. GSI contributors also explore the challenges and prospects for the long-term prevention of genocide, as well as those that focus on global and regional threats to human security, especially as they relate to genocide.

healthcare, men's health, medical research

The International Journal of Men's Social and Community Health (IJMSCH) is an interdisciplinary journal that aims to contribute to the advancement of men's health by publishing high quality research, policy and practice papers of contemporary relevance. There is specific focus on health experiences, social context and on community-based approaches to maintaining or improving men's and boys' health and well-being.

Original papers addressing empirical, theoretical, and applied aspects of men's health and wellbeing, as well as opinion pieces, critical reviews and studies analysing innovative intervention strategies, are all encouraged. IJMSCH is pleased to consider papers that address men's experiences of ill-health but particularly seeks contributions that recognise the wider determinants of health and those that explore the relationships between gender and health for men. As such, it also welcomes submissions from sectors such as social care, education, employment and community networks providing the the relevance to men's health and wellbeing is clear.

Steve Robertson is Emeritus Professor, Leeds Beckett University, UK; and Adjunct Professor, Waterford Institute of Technology, Ireland. Dr Robertson trained initially as a nurse working primarily in intensive care and coronary care before training and working as a public health nurse (Health Visitor) for five years. He completed his PhD and ESRC/MRC Interdisciplinary Post-Doctoral Fellowship at Lancaster University, UK.

The Journal of Canadian Studies (JCS) was the first Canadian Studies journal in the country. The journal has a long history of being deeply committed to interdisciplinary perspectives, bilingual presentation of research, and the scholarly study of Canada. The mandate of the JCS is twofold: it aims to publish the best scholarship about Canadian history, culture and society, whether the researcher is junior or senior, living in Canada or abroad; and second, to serve as a vehicle for disseminating solid, original research about Canada. JCS continues to champion and advance the emergence and legitimacy of interdisciplinary research in Canada.

education, human resources, public policy

The Journal of Education Human Resources (JEHR), formerly the Journal of School Public Relations, leverages the capacity of the collective academic and professional practitioner community to help solve some of the most pressing human and fiscal resource problems in education. As a “user-inspired” interdisciplinary journal, JEHR publishes articles that are a blend of scholarly, empirical, and field-based reflection, addressing contemporary human resource and finance issues in education, spanning across the P-20 continuum from a variety of perspectives. JEHR provides researchers, policymakers, practitioners, faculty, and consultants access to cutting-edge ideas and current knowledge, based on the evolving needs of the field. Given the interrelated nature of funding and human resource issues, the journal also has a special focus on topics related to education finance.

Recent special issues have included:

- Pushing the Boundaries of Social Justice: Theoretical and Methodological Considerations of School Finance Equity for Human Resources (Part II, 41.3, July 2023)
- The Intersection of Gender and Race in P–12 and Higher Education Leadership (40.3, July 2022)

The Journal of History (JH), formerly the Canadian Journal of History, is a peer-reviewed journal of general history publishing in both English and French. Geared to all professional historians, as well as to anyone interested in historical scholarship, it features articles and reviews by experts, and invites contributions from all areas of history. The journal has resisted the trend toward increased specialization and offers an excellent way to keep up with developments across the discipline.

JH publishes three issues annually in spring, fall, and winter. While the content of our issues varies seasonally, each issue may contain a maximum of four articles, one or two historiographical review articles, and approximately forty book reviews, including one or two longer “feature reviews,” which typically consider one or two books in somewhat greater depth. Our winter issue regularly features a guest editor and focuses on a specific theme or topic of their choosing.

The Journal of Mental Health and Addiction Nursing publishes research and other scholarly contributions that inform the development, implementation, and evaluation of practice, research, education, leadership, and policy relevant to nurses engaged in mental health and addiction nursing. Emphasis is placed on nursing-led knowledge and innovation that assists in preventing and managing conditions of individuals, communities, and specific populations experiencing mental health issues or illnesses.

Elsabeth Jensen is an Associate Professor at the School of Nursing at York University (Toronto, ON, Canada) and the new Director of the York-CAMH Collaborative. Her areas of research expertise include Nurse Practitioner education, mental health, childhood abuse, housing, discharge models, program evaluation, and knowledge translation. She is a Clinical Nurse Specialist in mental health and is a founding member of and the Ontario Representative to the Board of Directors of the Clinical Nurse Specialist Association of Canada. Dr. Jensen has been engaged in research for many years involving over two dozen projects worth almost a million dollars. Her publication record is extensive, including scholarly papers, book chapters and an edited book.

military life, PTSD, public policy, sociology, Veterans

The Journal of Military, Veteran and Family Health (JMVFH), the official scholarly journal of the Canadian Institute for Military and Veteran Health Research (CIMVHR), is published five times a year by the University of Toronto Press (UTP). JMVFH aims to maximize the health and social well-being of military personnel, Veterans, and their families by publishing world-class research for a broad international and multidisciplinary readership of researchers, health practitioners, administrators, and policy makers.

JMVFH provides a forum for a uniquely Canadian perspective on contemporary issues affecting military and Veteran populations and their families that supports evidence-based policy development at home and sound comparative policy analysis with international collaborators.

JMVFH publishes original articles in English, with English and French abstracts, related to the health and well-being of active military personnel, Veterans, and their families. The cutting-edge nature of the research published enables clinicians working to address particular challenges to establish best practices and share preliminary results from new therapies that will lead to the next great breakthroughs.

education, veterinary medicine

The Journal of Veterinary Medical Education (JVME) is the peer-reviewed scholarly journal of the American Association of Veterinary Medical Colleges (AAVMC). As an internationally distributed journal, JVME provides a forum for the exchange of ideas, research, and discoveries about veterinary medical education. This exchange benefits veterinary faculty, students, and the veterinary profession as a whole by preparing veterinarians to better perform their professional activities and to meet the needs of society.

The journal's areas of focus include best practices and educational methods in veterinary education; recruitment, training, and mentoring of students at all levels of education, including undergraduate, graduate, veterinary technology, and continuing education; clinical instruction and assessment; institutional policy; and other challenges and issues faced by veterinary educators domestically and internationally. Veterinary faculty of all countries are encouraged to participate as contributors, reviewers, and institutional representatives.

Dr. Regina Schoenfeld-Tacher is an Associate Professor of veterinary educational development in the North Carolina State University College of Veterinary Medicine's Department of Molecular Biomedical Sciences (Raleigh, NC, US).

Modern Drama (MD) is the most prominent journal in English to focus on dramatic literature. The terms “modern” and “drama” are the subject of continuing and fruitful debate, but the journal has been distinguished by the excellence of its close readings of both canonical and lesser-known dramatic texts from a range of methodological perspectives. The journal features refereed articles written from a variety of geo-political points of view which enhance our understanding, both formal and historical, of the dramatic literature of the past two centuries; there is also an extensive book review section.

National Gallery of Canada Review

Partial online archive

Editor-in-Chief:
Steven Loft

art, art history, history, literature, media

The National Gallery of Canada Review (NGCR) publishes original research on works in the Gallery's collections and the areas of investigation they represent. Articles are contributed by members of the Gallery staff. Contributions from art historians and specialists not affiliated with the NGC will be considered.

The NGCR is a bilingual online journal. Articles can be submitted in English or French and will be published in both languages.

Steven Loft is Vice-President, Indigenous Ways and Decolonization at the National Gallery of Canada (Ottawa, ON, Canada).

National Gallery of Canada Review 13, 2023

The articles in the 2023 issue focus on a selection of writings by Dr. Gerald McMaster.

Having written extensively on Indigenous art and cultural theory, his scholarship has significantly altered discourses around Indigenous art and contributed to the development of Indigenous art history as a distinct field of study.

Physiotherapy Canada

Partial online archive

Scientific Co-Editors:
Dina Brooks and Marilyn MacKay-Lyons

education, health science, physiotherapy

Physiotherapy Canada (PTC) meets the diverse needs of national and international readers and serves as a key repository of inquiries, evidence and advances in the practice of physiotherapy.

PTC publishes the results of qualitative and quantitative research including systematic reviews, meta analyses, meta syntheses, public/health policy research, clinical practice guidelines, and case reports.

In addition to delivering authoritative, original scientific articles and reports of significant clinical studies, Physiotherapy Canada's editorials and abstracts are presented in both English and French, expanding the journal's reach nationally and internationally. Key messages form an integral part of each research article, providing a succinct summary for readers of all levels. This approach also allows readers to quickly get a feel for 'what is already known' and 'what this study adds to' the subject.

Clinician's commentaries for key articles assist in bridging research and practice by discussing the article's impact at the clinical level. The journal also features special themed series which bring readers up to date research supporting evidence-informed practice.

Dina Brooks is the Acting Executive Vice-Dean and Associate Vice-President, Academic Faculty of Health Sciences and Professor, Vice-Dean & Executive Director, School of Rehabilitation Science of McMaster University (Hamilton, ON, Canada).

Marilyn MacKay-Lyons is a professor (post-retirement) in the Dalhousie University School of Physiotherapy, an affiliated scientist with the Nova Scotia Health Authority, and a cross-appointee with the Dalhousie University Department of Medicine (Halifax, NS, Canada).

Canadian studies, theatre

Theatre Research in Canada (TRIC) is Canada's only peer-reviewed journal with an explicit focus on Canadian and québécois theatre in both official languages. As such, it provides a necessary forum for the dissemination of scholarly research that uses the full range of critical approaches applied to the study of theatre as a multidisciplinary art, in the context of the cultures of Canada and Quebec.

TRIC remains committed to its long history of publishing original studies of actors, playwrights, directors, designers, theatre companies and buildings, theatrical genres, festivals, and other large-scale performances, as well as theoretically grounded studies of individual dramatic works and performance texts. It likewise continues to play an active role in broadening the parameters of theatre scholarship in Canada, through engagement with multi- and interdisciplinary research; studies of specific cultural groups and intercultural exchange; investigations of new and emergent technologies in Canadian design and performance; and explorations of theatricality and performativity beyond the traditional contexts of theatre and drama.

Nicole Nolette is an Associate Professor, Canada Research Chair, in the department of French Studies at University of Waterloo (Waterloo, ON, Canada) with specialization in literature, culture, and theatre by Franco-phone minorities in Canada.

Naila Keleta-Mae is the Principal Investigator of the Black And Free research-creation project; a Dorothy Killam Fellow; the Tier 2 SSHRC Canada Research Chair in Race, Gender and Performance; an accomplished multi-disciplinary artist; and an Associate Professor at University of Waterloo (Waterloo, ON, Canada).

University of Toronto Law Journal

Partial online archive

Editor:
David Dyzenhaus

economics, Indigenous studies, human rights, law, public policy

The University of Toronto Law Journal (UTLJ) has taken a broad and visionary approach to legal scholarship since its beginnings in 1935. Its first editor, Professor WPM Kennedy, hoped that the journal would foster a knowledge of law “as [the] expression ... of organized human life, of ordered progress, and of social justice.” UTLJ has since established itself as a leading journal for theoretical, interdisciplinary, comparative, and other conceptually oriented inquiries into law and law reform. UTLJ regularly publishes articles that study law from such perspectives as legal philosophy, law and economics, legal history, criminology, law and literature, and feminist analysis. Global in relevance, international in scope, it publishes work by highly regarded scholars from many countries, including Australia, Israel, Germany, New Zealand, the United States, and the United Kingdom.

The University of Toronto Law Journal is currently ranked first among all general refereed law journals worldwide by the Washington and Lee most cited legal periodicals list, a position that it has held since 2007. UTLJ also received the highest ranking for journal quality from the Australian Research Council and is recommended to British law libraries by the Society of Legal Scholars.

Canadian studies, critical review, humanities, literature

Acclaimed as one of the finest journals focused on the humanities, the University of Toronto Quarterly (UTQ) publishes interdisciplinary articles and review essays of international repute. Often the best insights in one field of knowledge come through cross-fertilization, where authors can apply another discipline's ideas, concepts, and paradigms to their own disciplines. UTQ is not a journal where one philosopher speaks to another, but a place where a philosopher can; speak to specialists and general readers in many other fields. This interdisciplinary approach provides a depth and quality to the journal that attracts both general readers and specialists from across the humanities. UTQ publishes works of literature, philosophy, fine arts, music, the history of ideas, cultural studies, and much more.

Letters in Canada: UTQ subscribers look forward to the bilingual Letters in Canada issue, which contains reviews of the previous year's work in Canadian fiction, poetry, drama, translations, and works in the humanities. Many of the recent issues have contained over 600 pages of the year's work in creative writing and scholarship.

Colin Hill is an Associate Professor of Canadian Literature in the Graduate Department of English at the University of Toronto (Toronto, ON, Canada) and in the Department of English and Drama at the University of Toronto Mississauga, where he is also director of the Canadian Studies program.

Urban History Review

Complete online archive

Editors:

Nicolas Kenny and Harold Bérubé

cultural studies, history, urban design

The Urban History Review (UHR) aims to serve as a vehicle for the exchange of information, theories, and techniques relating to the development of urban communities over time. The journal publishes high-quality peer-reviewed research on the historical development of urban Canada in a broad sense, with particular emphasis on current research: work being done on Canadian towns and cities; future research: topics that need to be added to the research agenda; methodology: methods needed for studying urban places; and sources: availability, reliability and interpretation of research materials.

The UHR aims to bring together the various disciplinary perspectives that exist in the broad field of urban studies, and to publish international research that deals with comparative, methodological or historiographical issues or topics.

Nicolas Kenny is a member of the Department of History at Simon Fraser University (Burnaby, BC, Canada). His research focuses on sensorial and emotional experiences of urban environments in times of significant transformations, including industrial modernity and war.

Harold Bérubé holds degrees in History and Urban Studies from the Université de Montréal (Montréal, QC, Canada) and the Institut national de la recherche scientifique, where he completed his doctoral dissertation in 2008. His research focuses on the political and cultural history of cities and their inhabitants.

University of Toronto Press (UTP) is one of the largest university presses in North America, publishing cutting-edge research and exceptional scholarship since 1901. UTP's growing collection of highly regarded scholarly journals includes over 55 leading titles in a range of disciplines, including medicine, social sciences, and the humanities.

Enrich and extend the online research capabilities of your faculty, students, and researchers with one or more of UTP's 39 online journal archives, dating as far back as 1897 and encompassing over 4,100 journal issues.

Library customers benefit from:

PERPETUAL ACCESS: Libraries retain perpetual access to the archive once purchased.

MULTIPLE AUTHENTICATION SOLUTIONS: UTP offers all standard methods including Proxy IP, Single Sign-On with Shibboleth and OpenAthens, Campus Authenticated Subscriber Access (CASA), other methods are also included, such as setting up a secure proxy to grant access through a link on your website when users log in through your online portal.

EASY USAGE TRACKING: UTP simplifies access management, linking, and usage reporting with powerful and easy-to-use administrative tools. Support for established and emerging standards, such as Shibboleth, OpenURL, and COUNTER, enables seamless integration with existing library systems.

INTERACTIVE AND USER-FRIENDLY INTERFACE: UTP's platform has a short learning curve, advanced search functions, embedded images, video, and audio, forward and backward reference linking, link exports, and social sharing. Use it to set preferences, content and citation alerts, to organize and save article search results, and to track and download citation data.

COLLECTED WORKS OF ERASMUS

Erasmus was one of the architects of modern thought and his works reflect a vast range of interests including history, theology, the classics, social theory, education, political theory, literature, and the history of ideas. His letters remain the single most important source for the intellectual history of the Renaissance and Reformation.

The aim of the Collected Works of Erasmus is to make available an accurate, readable English text of Erasmus' correspondence and his other principal writings in a comprehensive library of 89 volumes.

The series was launched in 1968 and is still going strong today.

"One of the most ambitious, meticulous, and essential scholarly projects now underway."

—Willis G. Regier, Modern Language Notes

"The Collected Works of Erasmus project has long since established a new standard for scholarly translation series to emulate. Not only have the English versions represented Erasmus' writings in crisp and accessible language, but meticulous editorial scholarship has placed the author's thought and work in their proper intellectual contexts."

—Jerry H. Bentley, Renaissance Quarterly

"The Toronto Erasmus project is a magnificent achievement, one of the scholarly triumphs of our time."

—Lisa Jardine, Common Knowledge

OVERVIEW OF THE COLLECTED WORKS OF ERASMUS

Due to the size of the Collected Works of Erasmus and the number of editors, translators, and annotators working on the project, each volume is considered, reviewed, and published as the work is completed rather than chronologically. The first volume was published in 1974.
